

A BILL

To abolish the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology, repeal section 3001 of the Public Health Service Act, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology Abolition Act of 2026”.

SECTION 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology (ASTP/ONC), a component of the Department of Health and Human Services, sets standards and certification for electronic health records and health information exchange.

(2) By directing the electronic collection and exchange of the health records of Americans, the Office regulates activities that are local and intrastate in character, exceeding the power granted in Article I, Section 8, Clause 3 “To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes,” a power that, as understood at ratification, reaches trade and exchange across State lines and not production, local activity, or the internal affairs of the States.

(3) The functions of the Office are not “necessary and proper for carrying into Execution” any power vested by the Constitution in the Government of the United States and therefore find no support in Article I, Section 8, Clause 18, which Madison in Federalist No. 44 described as a means of executing powers already granted rather than a source of new ones, as the Anti-Federalist writer Brutus warned in his first essay of 1787 it would otherwise become.

(4) The Office exercises lawmaking power by issuing rules and standards that carry the force of law, contrary to Article I, Section 1, which vests “All legislative Powers herein granted” in the Congress alone, which may not transfer them to officers unaccountable to the people at the ballot box.

(5) By promoting the electronic aggregation and exchange of private health records, the Office infringes the Fourth Amendment’s protection of “the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures,” and its requirement that no warrants shall issue “but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.”

(6) In carrying out its functions, the Office disregards the Ninth Amendment, which provides that “The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people,” including the right of the people to order their own lives, property, and affairs free of federal direction in matters the Constitution does not commit to the Federal Government.

(7) The Constitution delegates to the United States no power over the practice of medicine and medical records. By directing the electronic collection and exchange of the health records of Americans, the Office exercises powers that the Tenth Amendment reserves “to the States respectively, or to the people,” contrary to Federalist No. 45, in which Madison described the powers delegated to the Federal Government as “few and defined” and those remaining in the States as “numerous and indefinite.”

(8) The Declaration of Independence affirms that governments are instituted to secure the unalienable rights of the people and derive “their just powers from the consent of the governed,” and it charged the Crown with having “erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.” The Office perpetuates the centralized administration the Declaration condemned.

(9) Abolishing the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology and repealing section 3001 of the Public Health Service Act will reduce the size and cost of the Federal Government, return to the States and to the people the powers the Constitution reserves to them, and restore the constitutional principles of limited government and enumerated powers.

SECTION 3. ABOLITION OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR TECHNOLOGY POLICY AND OFFICE OF THE NATIONAL COORDINATOR FOR HEALTH INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY.

(a) In General.—The Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology, a component of the Department of Health and Human Services, is hereby abolished effective immediately following the enactment of this Act.

(b) Wind-Down Operations.—Immediately following the enactment of this Act, the President shall designate an appropriate official to expeditiously wind down the operations of the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology, ceasing all functions, none of which shall be transferred to any other department or agency of the Federal Government.

(a) In General.—Section 3001 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300jj-11), and any other provision of law establishing the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology or vesting functions in the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology, are hereby repealed.

(b) Conforming Amendments.—The United States Code and all other relevant Federal laws are amended by—

(1) striking all references to the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology and to any office, officer, or function established in or vested in the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology;

(2) terminating every function of the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology, no part of which shall be reassigned to any other department or agency of the Federal Government; and

(3) making such other conforming changes as necessary to reflect the repeal and the permanent abolition of the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology.

(c) Effective Date.—The repeal under this section shall take effect immediately following the enactment of this Act.

SECTION 5. TRANSITION PROVISIONS.

(a) No Restoration of Prior Structures.—No element of the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology shall revert to its organizational structure as it existed prior to the establishment of the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology, and no function of the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology shall be restored to any predecessor department, agency, or office.

(b) Permanent Abolition.—No department, agency, office, or other entity shall be established to carry out the functions of the Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy and Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology abolished by this Act.

SECTION 6. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this Act, or the application thereof to any person or circumstance, is held invalid, the remainder of the Act and the application of such provision to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.
