

A BILL

To abolish the National Center for Health Statistics, repeal section 306 of the Public Health Service Act, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “National Center for Health Statistics Abolition Act of 2026”.

SECTION 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

- (1) The National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS), a component of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Department of Health and Human Services, collects and publishes health statistics, including vital statistics from the States.
- (2) By collecting health data on Americans, the NCHS expends money drawn from the Treasury on objects that are not among the enumerated powers of Congress, exceeding the “general Welfare” clause of Article I, Section 8, Clause 1, which James Madison explained in Federalist No. 41 is limited by the specific powers enumerated after it and confers no separate power to spend for any object Congress may choose.
- (3) The functions of the NCHS are not “necessary and proper for carrying into Execution” any power vested by the Constitution in the Government of the United States and therefore find no support in Article I, Section 8, Clause 18, which Madison in Federalist No. 44 described as a means of executing powers already granted rather than a source of new ones, as the Anti-Federalist writer Brutus warned in his first essay of 1787 it would otherwise become.
- (4) By collecting data on the health and private lives of Americans, the NCHS infringes the Fourth Amendment’s protection of “the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures,” and its requirement that no warrants shall issue “but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.”
- (5) In carrying out its functions, the NCHS disregards the Ninth Amendment, which provides that “The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people,” including the right of the people to order their own lives, property, and affairs free of federal direction in matters the Constitution does not commit to the Federal Government.
- (6) The Constitution delegates to the United States no power over public health. By collecting health data on Americans, the NCHS exercises powers that the Tenth Amendment reserves “to the States respectively, or to the people,” contrary to Federalist No. 45, in which Madison described the powers delegated to the Federal Government as “few and defined” and those remaining in the States as “numerous and indefinite.”

(7) The Declaration of Independence affirms that governments are instituted to secure the unalienable rights of the people and derive “their just powers from the consent of the governed,” and it charged the Crown with having “erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.” The NCHS perpetuates the centralized administration the Declaration condemned.

(8) Abolishing the National Center for Health Statistics and repealing section 306 of the Public Health Service Act will reduce the size and cost of the Federal Government, return to the States and to the people the powers the Constitution reserves to them, and restore the constitutional principles of limited government and enumerated powers.

SECTION 3. ABOLITION OF THE NATIONAL CENTER FOR HEALTH STATISTICS.

(3) making such other conforming changes as necessary to reflect the repeal and the permanent abolition of the National Center for Health Statistics.

(c) Effective Date.—The repeal under this section shall take effect immediately following the enactment of this Act.

SECTION 5. TRANSITION PROVISIONS.

(a) No Restoration of Prior Structures.—No element of the National Center for Health Statistics shall revert to its organizational structure as it existed prior to the establishment of the National Center for Health Statistics, and no function of the National Center for Health Statistics shall be restored to any predecessor department, agency, or office.

(b) Permanent Abolition.—No department, agency, office, or other entity shall be established to carry out the functions of the National Center for Health Statistics abolished by this Act.
