

A BILL

To abolish the Executive Office for Immigration Review, repeal the provisions of law establishing the Executive Office for Immigration Review, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Executive Office for Immigration Review Abolition Act of 2026”.

SECTION 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

- (1) The Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR), a component of the Department of Justice, conducts immigration court proceedings and appeals through immigration judges and the Board of Immigration Appeals.
- (2) The functions of the EOIR are not “necessary and proper for carrying into Execution” any power vested by the Constitution in the Government of the United States and therefore find no support in Article I, Section 8, Clause 18, which Madison in Federalist No. 44 described as a means of executing powers already granted rather than a source of new ones, as the Anti-Federalist writer Brutus warned in his first essay of 1787 it would otherwise become.
- (3) By adjudicating removal cases, the EOIR exercises judicial power in tribunals of the executive branch, contrary to Article III, Section 1, which vests “the judicial Power of the United States” in courts whose judges “shall hold their Offices during good Behaviour.”
- (4) By depriving persons of liberty through executive tribunals, the EOIR violates the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment, which provides that no person shall “be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law”.
- (5) In carrying out its functions, the EOIR disregards the Ninth Amendment, which provides that “The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people,” including the right of the people to order their own lives, property, and affairs free of federal direction in matters the Constitution does not commit to the Federal Government.
- (6) The Constitution delegates to the United States no power over adjudication of personal liberty. By adjudicating liberty and residence in tribunals of the executive branch, the EOIR exercises powers that the Tenth Amendment reserves “to the States respectively, or to the people,” contrary to Federalist No. 45, in which Madison described the powers delegated to the Federal Government as “few and defined” and those remaining in the States as “numerous and indefinite.”

(7) The Declaration of Independence affirms that governments are instituted to secure the unalienable rights of the people and derive “their just powers from the consent of the governed,” and it charged the Crown with having “erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.” The EOIR perpetuates the centralized administration the Declaration condemned.

(8) Abolishing the Executive Office for Immigration Review and repealing the provisions of law establishing it will reduce the size and cost of the Federal Government, return to the States and to the people the powers the Constitution reserves to them, and restore the constitutional principles of limited government and enumerated powers.

SECTION 3. ABOLITION OF THE EXECUTIVE OFFICE FOR IMMIGRATION REVIEW.

(a) In General.—The Executive Office for Immigration Review, a component of the Department of Justice, is hereby abolished effective immediately following the enactment of this Act.

(b) Wind-Down Operations.—Immediately following the enactment of this Act, the President shall designate an appropriate official to expeditiously wind down the operations of the Executive Office for Immigration Review, ceasing all functions, none of which shall be transferred to any other department or agency of the Federal Government.

(c) Transfer of Assets and Liabilities.—All assets, liabilities, contracts, property, and records of the Executive Office for Immigration Review shall be transferred to the designated official under subsection (b) for appropriate disposition.

(d) Employee Transition.—Employees of the Executive Office for Immigration Review shall be offered opportunities for reassignment within the federal government or provided with severance and retraining assistance as prescribed by existing federal law.

SECTION 4. REPEAL OF PROVISIONS OF LAW ESTABLISHING THE EXECUTIVE OFFICE FOR IMMIGRATION REVIEW.

(a) In General.—The provisions of law establishing the Executive Office for Immigration Review, and any provision of law vesting functions in the Executive Office for Immigration Review, are hereby repealed.

(b) Conforming Amendments.—The United States Code and all other relevant Federal laws are amended by—

(1) striking all references to the Executive Office for Immigration Review and to any office, officer, or function established in or vested in the Executive Office for Immigration Review;

(2) terminating every function of the Executive Office for Immigration Review, no part of which shall be reassigned to any other department or agency of the Federal Government; and

(3) making such other conforming changes as necessary to reflect the repeal and the permanent abolition of the Executive Office for Immigration Review.

(c) Effective Date.—The repeal under this section shall take effect immediately following the enactment of this Act.

SECTION 5. TRANSITION PROVISIONS.

(a) No Restoration of Prior Structures.—No element of the Executive Office for Immigration Review shall revert to its organizational structure as it existed prior to the establishment of the Executive Office for Immigration Review, and no function of the Executive Office for Immigration Review shall be restored to any predecessor department, agency, or office.

(b) Permanent Abolition.—No department, agency, office, or other entity shall be established to carry out the functions of the Executive Office for Immigration Review abolished by this Act.

SECTION 6. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this Act, or the application thereof to any person or circumstance, is held invalid, the remainder of the Act and the application of such provision to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.
